1. The Globe and Mail published a report citing unnamed sources who alleged officials in TRUDEAU's office pressured Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD to overrule federal prosecutors by offering a remediation agreement to SNC-Lavalin. Prime Minister (PM) TRUDEAU denied any political interference whatsoever. Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD refused to confirm or deny the allegations, and refused to publicly back the Prime Minister's version, citing solicitor-client privilege.

February 9, 2019

2. Ethics Commissioner DION initiated an examination into the matter.

(Source: TRUDEAU Report II)

February 21, 2019

3. The Standing Committee on Justice and Human Rights (Justice Committee) proceeded with hearings on the matter of remediation agreements, the Shawcross doctrine and discussion between government colleagues. On February 21, 2019, the current Attorney General, the Honourable David LAMETTI testifies before the Committee. On the same day, Michael WERNICK, Clerk of the Privy Council Office and Nathalie DROUIN, Deputy Minister at the Department of Justice and Attorney General, provided testimonies on the matter before the Justice Committee.

February 25, 2019

4. Prime Minister TRUDEAU's Cabinet issued an Order in Council to waive cabinet confidence and solicitor-client privilege for Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD in relation to discussions she had on SNC-Lavalin. This freed her to speak before the Justice Committee and Ethics Commissioner publicly about what happened, even though it did not waive privilege that covered conversations Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD had with Kathleen ROUSSEL, Director of Public Prosecutions, concerning SNC-Lavalin.

February 27, 2019

5. Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD appeared before the Justice Committee and provided testimony on the matter. Team III SII investigators monitored the testimony of Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD.

10. At 14:14 hours, Sgt PINCINCE received a letter submitted to Commissioner Brenda LUCKI from the leader of the opposition, the Honourable Andrew SCHEER. Following is an extract of this letter:

(...) For three weeks Canadians have been gripped by the news surrounding interference by the Prime Minister and his closest political allies in the bribery and fraud trial of SNC-Lavalin. Explosive testimony from former Attorney General Jody Wilson-Raybould confirmed a "consistent and sustained" campaign to politically interfere in prosecutorial discretion.

She confirmed that there were "veiled threats" of consequences if she did not bend to the political wishes of the Liberal Party and the financial interests of the shareholders of SNC-Lavalin. It was also clear that these actions rose to the highest ranks of the government.

It is contrary to section 423.1 (1) of the Criminal Code to engage in any conduct with the intent to provoke fear in the Attorney General. It is further contrary to section 139 of the Criminal Code to attempt to obstruct or defeat the course of justice.

According to the facts as have been revealed in media reports, Parliamentary testimony from the Clerk of the Privy Council Michael Wernick, and most significantly the recent comments of the former Attorney General, Canadians are rightly concerned that criminal law has been violated.

These are incredibly serious allegations. And I do not write these words lightly. But the matter at hand appears, on its face, to be a gross violation of the law. I feel that it is my duty to inform you of this matter.

I urge you to ensure that you use all resources at your disposal to fully and fairly investigate any potential criminal activity.

Thank you in advance for your attention to this very important issue. (...)

 - ii. The House will not be sitting for the period of April 13 to April 28, which is coinciding with the Easter holiday period (April 19 to April 22, 2019).
 - iii. John AHERN's availability.
 1. John AHERN is available to assist RCMP investigators for the period of April 16, 17 and 18,

RAYBOULD.

Speaking Points

Investigative unit: RCMP National Division - Sensitive and International Investigations in Ottawa.

Actions undertaken: RCMP has monitored the situation and has reviewed various testimonies before the Standing Committee on Justice and Human Rights into the matter.

Allegations: Political interfere in the exercise of prosecutorial discretion in an inappropriate effort to secure a deferred prosecution agreement (DPA) with SNC-Lavalin.

Complaint from third party: The RCMP has received a letter from the Honourable Andrew Scheer, Leader of the official opposition requesting an investigation into the matter.

Considerations:

- 1) Testimony before a parliamentary committee is protected by parliamentary privilege and can't be used in criminal proceedings.
- 2) Order in Council only provides for testimony before the Standing Committee on Justice and Human Rights and the examination by the Conflict of Interest and Ethics Commissioner.

Purpose of call: To assess the witness' willingness to meet with investigators in regards to the above mentioned allegation.

Objectives:

- 1) Meet with witness to assess the type of privilege (i.e. client-solicitor, cabinet) and parameters (i.e. time period) required for a waiver to allow the witness to provide a statement to investigators.
- 2) Determine if there are other evidence (i.e. witnesses, documentary) that would be relevant to a more complete assessment of the situation.
 - a. Identify potential witnesses.
 - b. Identify any perishable evidence and information holder.
- 3) The overall objective is to obtain a complete statement from the witness so that the RCMP can form its own opinion on the situation.

Email extract:

As we discussed, the RCMP has been reviewing the various testimonies before the Standing Committee on Justice and Human Rights (Justice Committee) as it relates to allegations of political interference in an effort to secure a remediation agreement for SNC-Lavalin. As such, we would like to determine if there is other evidence or details that would be relevant to a more complete assessment of the situation. Our overall objective is to obtain a statement from you, which would include all of the relevant facts. With this information, the RCMP can fully evaluate the situation and assess it for criminality. However, it is my understanding that the current Order in Council only applies to hearings before the Justice Committee or for the purposes of an examination by the Conflict of Interest and Ethics Commissioner. As such, we would like to meet with you in order to assess what parameters should be included in an Order in Council which would allow you to provide a complete statement into the matter. At the same time, the meeting would serve the purpose of assessing if relevant information exists. I remain available to meet with you at your convenience upon your return to Canada. Due to the media attention surrounding this matter, your discretion and confidentiality in relation to the content of our communications would be greatly appreciated.

Key points

Order in Council

- Background: Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD was not involved in the process to obtain the current Order in Council (reference: 2019-0105) which gave her authority to speak to the Justice Committee or the Ethics Commissioner. The Order was granted under the recommendation of the Prime Minister (PM) following some debates in the House of Commons on the matter.
- The current Order in Council does not cover the period of time following her removal as Attorney General (AG). Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD indicated that discussions took place with the PM after the end of her position as AG.
- In order for Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD to provide a statement as it pertains to the totality of the events, a waiver should, at least, include the following:
 - An extension of the waiver to include the period of time between her removal as AG until her dismissal from the Liberal Caucus;

- The waiver should include solicitor-client privilege, any other relevant duty of confidentiality to the Government of Canada and any confidences of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada.

Other Potential Evidence

- Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD indicated that she had already provided to the Justice Committee the salient points as it relates to the SNC-Lavalin matter. However, she indicated that there could be additional relevant information given that additional discussions took place after her removal as AG. These discussions could be relevant.
- As it relates to documentary evidence, Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD only provided documentation between herself and other individuals. These documents did not include communications between third parties. As such there might be other relevant documentation not yet disclosed to the Justice Committee.
- Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD kept copies of relevant materials since September and still has possession of her blackberry and a "burner phone" which she used while abroad.
- As it relates to witnesses, in her submissions to the Justice Committee, Ms. WILSON-RAYBOULD only provided the names of the main players. She acknowledged that additional staff members from her former Office (MOJAG) would have been privy to specifics on the matter. They were not mentioned given their peripheral roles.

I suspect this story will break soon. Wanted to give you a heads up. (...)

68. At 10:59 hours, Sgt PINCINCE received a copy of a letter sent to Commissioner LUCKI by the Honourable Andrew SCHEER in relation to the matter.

Letter extract

I am following up on my correspondence of February 28, wherein I wrote to you to draw your attention to troubling events related to Justin Trudeau's attempts to interfere in the criminal trial of SNC-Lavalin.

You will recall I noted at the time that Jody Wilson-Raybould, the former Attorney General of Canada, confirmed in testimony to Parliament that there were "veiled threats" of consequences from Trudeau and his office if she did not overrule the Director of Public Prosecutions' (DPP) decision not to award a Deferred Prosecution Agreement (DPA) to SNC-Lavalin.

In other words, Ms. Wilson-Raybould would be punished for refusing the bend to Trudeau's political will and SNC-Lavalin's financial interests.

Canadians learned last week that the RCMP have begun looking into this situation and interviewing those implicated. This was most certainly a welcome revelation, as many Canadians are keenly interested in how Trudeau will be held accountable.

Criminal investigations are, of course, entirely within your purview. I wish only to note, as I did in February, that it is contrary to section 139 of the Criminal Code for anybody to "obstruct, pervert or defeat the course of justice."

As you know, the Conflict of Interest and Ethics Commissioner has released an extraordinarily detailed report into this matter.

The Commissioner's report represents independent and incontrovertible confirmation of Ms. Wilson-Raybould's Parliamentary testimony, while also introducing several previously unknown facts to the case.

Therefore, it must be regarded as the most important piece of evidence in this matter.

There are several elements of the report that would be relevant to any investigation that you may undertake in this matter.

The Commissioner stated "The Prime Minister, directly and through his senior officials, used various means to exert influence over Ms. Wilson-Raybould. The authority of the Prime Minister and his office was used to circumvent, undermine and ultimately attempt to discredit the decision of the Director of Public Prosecutions as well as the authority of Ms. Wilson-Raybould as the Crown's chief law officer."

On a plain reading of the language used by the Commissioner, Trudeau's actions would fall within the contours of "obstructing, perverting or defeating the course of justice." As the report makes clear, he specifically undertook a campaign to do just that in respect of the criminal trial of SNC-Lavalin.

This is evident in three main findings of the Commissioner:

1. The Commissioner found that in addition to the numerous discussions of the financial interests of SNC-Lavalin, there were at least four times that political interests were discussed with Ms. Wilson-Raybould.

2. Despite SNC-Lavalin filing a judicial review of the DPP's refusal to grant them DPA, and despite Privy Council advice to the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) to avoid contact with SNC-Lavalin during the review process, contact between the PMO and SNC-Lavalin drastically increased. This included discussion of possible resolutions and litigation strategies, despite the clear impropriety of engaging in such discussions.

3. The PMO/SNC-Lavalin discussions led to both parties approaching a former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada to meet with Ms. Wilson-Raybould and advise her to overrule the DPP. This was done without Ms. Wilson-Raybould's knowledge.

Together, these findings reveal the degree to which the PMO and SNC-Lavalin maneuvered in secret to manipulate the administration of justice by both the DPP and the Attorney General.

Essentially, the same PMO operatives who were pressuring Ms. Wilson-Raybould to overturn the decision of an independent prosecutor were scheming behind closed doors with the defendant. Indeed, they were advocating on the defendant's behalf.

Further, they paint a disturbing picture of a Prime Minister who uses the power of his office to decide who gets prosecuted and who does not, based solely on his own partisan political interests.

The implications of this - on everything from the integrity of Canada's highest political office, to the independence of our judicial system, to the very rule of law - cannot be overstated.

The powerful and politically connected absolutely cannot be above the law. The law must be for all.

I believe I speak for millions of Canadians by requesting that you use all the resources at your disposal to investigate this matter, not only so that justice is done but so that it is seen to be done.

69. At 19:52 hours, Supt MACLEAN received an update indicating the request was still being considered.

The current occurrence requires travel to another province in order to meet with a key witness. Given the current travel restrictions and the social/physical distancing recommendations by provincial and federal authorities, the taking of a statement is not feasible at this time. This investigative technique is currently on hold and will be reassessed once the pandemic situation has resolved itself. Despite the current impact, investigators are advancing the occurrence by updating the file, completing required reports (i.e. statement summaries, assessment report) and analysing the information gathered thus far in relation to the matter.

Email extract:

(...) I am writing to determine if _____ is still willing to provide a statement in relation to the SNC-Lavalin matter. While the COVID situation is improving, we feel that travel to BC might still not be advisable. As such, I am exploring alternatives to an in-person statement for which your client would be comfortable with. If acceptable to everyone, we could arrange for a video-conference statement at a suitable date and location. Given the current waiver and authorization, the statement would only focus on information falling within its parameters. While we feel this would be the best option given the current situation, please feel free to propose any options or recommendations. Ultimately, our goal is to ensure that _____ is comfortable with any process. Please let me know of your preference once you had the opportunity to consult with _____.

Email extract:

I am currently looking into options for the teleconference platform. From my initial inquiries, Zoom does not appear to be a platform the RCMP could use for the purpose of a statement. I will suggest some options as soon as I hear more from IT.

As for the time required for the statement, I would estimate its duration to be less than 5 hours. This is based on the current parameters of the waiver and authorization. However, statements do sometimes go over our predictions subject to how much information the witness can provide.

Re: DELAY OF INVESTIGATION DUE TO COVID-192020-04-21

The current occurrence has been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic situation in the following manner:

- COVIDB = Inability to implement necessary investigative techniques; and
- COVIDC = Travel limitations.

The current occurrence requires travel to another province in order to meet with a key witness. Given the current travel restrictions and the social/physical distancing recommendations by provincial and federal authorities, the taking of a statement is not feasible at this time. This investigative technique is currently on hold and will be reassessed once the pandemic situation has resolved itself.

Despite the current impact, investigators are advancing the occurrence by updating the file on PROS and completing required reports (i.e. statement summaries).

In October 2020, following an ease of the COVID-19 restrictions, additional investigative actions were conducted as it pertained to the RCMP Assessment. The investigative actions were done remotely so to limit any health risks.

2022-08-03

Task reviewed - no further impact. Task to be concluded.
